

For live theatre to be engaging and rewarding, an atmosphere free of unnecessary distractions is essential for both audience and cast.

- No babes in arms (except at relaxed performances).
- Every person requires a ticket and a seat.
- The minimum age to attend a performance is five years unless otherwise specified in the publicity for a show. Check our website for the exceptions. (This is minimum and does not necessarily mean the play is appropriate for young children.)
- Children should be able to sit quietly without pushing or kicking the seatback in front of them.
- Fire regulations do not allow strollers or other equipment in the aisles.
- For some child friendly shows we are able to provide a limited number of booster seats to help your child see the action better.
- If children are disrupting the experience of other patrons, please remove them from the theatre. On re-entry ushers may seat you near the exit.
